2023-24 Impact Report

National Vision Local Impact

Message from the Chair

At the Rideau Hall Foundation (RHF), we see Canada the way we see our programming, not as siloed, separate groups with varying objectives and goals, but instead as a vast landscape of interconnected communities with limitless potential. As we look at the ways our individual efforts complement and connect to each other, it becomes clearer and clearer that there is so much that brings us together and makes us stronger as a whole. We all want to learn, grow, trust one another and ignite our shared potential.

This year has been an invigorating return to what we value so much, togetherness and collaboration. We gathered and connected with the Catapult Canada and Indigenous teacher education community, learning more about how we can support them in the excellent work they are doing to make access to education easy and meaningful. We celebrated innovation in all its forms, from the distinguished laureates of the Governor General's Innovation Awards, to our newest and next great innovators of Ingenious+, as well as the continuing excellence of the Arctic Inspiration Prize winners.

As the RHF moves into its next ten years, we will be guided by the impact we have seen in the ten years prior, and with no shortage of inspiration from the incredible people, partners and organizations we are fortunate to work with, we are buoyed by hope and excitement for the future ahead.

The Right Honourable David Johnston

28th Governor General of Canada,
Chair of the Rideau Hall Foundation

Message from the President and CEO

In its first ten years, the Rideau Hall Foundation (RHF) established itself as a thriving and dynamic national charitable organization focused on building a better Canada for all and addressing some of our country's long-term challenges. Building on our existing tapestry of national programs, we're now setting our sights on the future.

We believe there is a critical need for an independent and non-partisan organization with a long-term vision for the country. This is especially true considering some of the challenges our country and the world are facing, with many Canadians worried about the future and disillusioned by the present. It is critical that we both recognize and celebrate Canadian excellence and achievement, as well as work to create a more aspirational narrative for and about the country. We believe that doing so will help to bring us closer together as a country, and inspire a next generation of dreamers and doers. By working in collaboration with other organizations serving as a force for good, we are fulfilling that role. And our new strategic plan, launched this past year, will help us achieve this.

Creating Opportunities, Connecting Communities, is a five-year plan for a more positive and inclusive vision for Canada. We believe in the enormous potential for people to problem-solve, learn, serve, and lead in support of a better and more unified Canada; because of that, the RHF will be relentless in its goal to create opportunities for Canadians and to connect communities along the way. Thank you for your support, partnership, and belief.

Teresa Marques

Strategic Priorities

Our Purpose

The RHF is a non-partisan national charitable organization. We amplify the impact of Canada's governors general, and seek to engage Canadians in the core elements of our democracy.

1. Ensuring Canada's learning landscape is characterized by equality of opportunity and excellence

We will invest in programs and partnerships where Canadians can chart their own learning and career pathways and reach their fullest potential.

2. Making innovation contagious and inevitable for all Canadians, of every age, in every sector

We will celebrate Canadian innovation success stories while providing financial resourcing, mentorship, and material connections for innovators across sectors, regions, and stages.

3. Deepening the country's trust in and understanding of Canada's public institutions

We will address the current democratic deficit and build greater awareness of and engagement with Canada's democratic institutions as a source of national pride.

4. Strengthening civil society and Canada's culture of volunteerism

We will encourage Canadians to become active in strengthening community through volunteering and mentoring, getting involved in public life, and by ensuring the health and vibrancy of Canadian civil society.

Ensuring Canada's learning landscape is characterized by equality of opportunity and excellence

Catapult Canada: Increasing equity of learning access for youth

Through Catapult Canada, the RHF is committed to helping ensure that every Canadian youth is given the opportunity to learn and build the skills they need to be full participants in their communities.

The vision for Catapult was to create a community of like-minded organizations across the country that could draw on each others' experiences, share successes and build on each other's achievements. That vision became a reality in November 2023, when 48 Catapult funded organizations came together in Winnipeg to make connections, share and learn from each other. The next Catapult Gathering will take place in Halifax in October 2024.

OVER THREE YEARS, CATAPULT CANADA HAS:

Offered 3 open calls for funding

Invested more than $13.7 million in community-based programming for youth

Supported 75 youth-serving charities and non-profits

Benefited 100,000+ youth across the country

Catapult Impact Stories

Centre Communautaire BonCourage:

The Quebec-based program, Leadership au pluriel, is dedicated to local youth between the ages of 12-25 years old. The program aspires to improve academic outcomes, reduce the effects of socio-economic inequities, improve social inclusion, and bolster socio-economic and professional inclusion by providing a dedicated youth learning space fostering multidisciplinary learning and personal and interpersonal development.

Hope Blooms

Hope Blooms:

The Halifax-based SEED program, which consists of an equitable marketplace in the heart of their Nova Scotia community, is a cryptocurrency-inspired micro-economy. This new system allows the donors and recipients to be completely anonymous, providing a greater sense of dignity for those receiving food assistance. The program has served to reduce food waste, increase access to fresh produce, increase freedom of choice, and create a sense of empowerment for those receiving the subsidy.

Queen Elizabeth Scholars

The Canadian Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Scholarships, known as the Queen Elizabeth Scholars (QES) program, aim to mobilize a dynamic community of young global leaders to create lasting impacts both at home and abroad through inter-cultural exchanges encompassing international education, discovery and inquiry, and professional experiences.

In 2024, colleges as well as universities were invited to submit proposals for QES funding for the first time. This will help provide global learning opportunities to more students in a wider variety of fields of study that focus on the adaptation, response and resilience to a changing climate.

More than 2,500 scholars

47 Canadian universities

QE Scholars have gone to or come from over 80 countries

112 projects funded

650+ partner organizations engaged
(universities, NGOs, research institutes)

“My two most important lessons learned from this experience are to say yes to every opportunity that is offered to you. I had so many incredible experiences during my time here simply because I left my comfort zone. Another lesson learned was that when collaborating with different perspectives and cultures, great things can be achieved.”

Adriane Cairns, Queen Elizabeth Scholar, Mount Royal University Sport Leaders International Internship Program, Botswana

QES Impact Story

Toronto Metropolitan University (TMU) led a QES project between 2017 and 2021, with a goal to strengthen Colombia’s coastal aquifer resilience and protect groundwater from contamination caused by climate change. The project team hosted 17 researchers from Colombian universities at the PhD and Postdoctoral levels, and one Canadian postdoctoral scholar was hosted at the University of Cartagena. Their findings helped improve numerical predictions in climate change, salinity intrusion, groundwater contamination, sea-level rise, water quality and many other areas. All QES alumni from this project are now working in different research laboratories, government, industry, and academia. The TMU team has since been awarded a second round of QES funding to address the critical issue of water scarcity and inadequate sewage treatment in Colombia.

“Imagine a future where every Indigenous child across the nation has the opportunity to learn from an Indigenous educator. This initiative honours and supports the transformative role Indigenous educators have on First Nations, Inuit, and Métis students, their communities, and our country.”

Roberta Jamieson, RHF Board Director and National Advisory Committee on Indigenous Teacher Education (NACITE) co-chair.

Indigenous Teachers Education Initiative

The RHF Indigenous Teacher Education Initiative will dramatically increase the number of First Nations, Inuit and Métis teachers by 10,000 and promote the systemic changes necessary for more sustainable Indigenous teacher employment opportunities in all areas of the country. In 2024, the RHF confirmed support for seven Indigenous-led and community-driven programs totalling $13.2 million:

Yukon University, Yukon First Nation Education Directorate, First Nation School Board, YK: The Collaborative Indigenous Teachers Education Program aims to bridge the education gap and create culturally responsive learning environments.

University nuxelhot’jine thaa?ehots’j nistameyimâkanak Blue Quills (Treaty No. 6 Territory): Kiskeyihtamowin kiskinohamatowin (teach each other) aims to create three distinct teacher education streams – immersion, elementary and secondary programming.

Gabriel Dumont Institute (SK): The Métis-led organization will invest in their Expanding Teachers Education Program, which will enhance their capacity to accept and train more Indigenous students in their journeys to become teachers.

Seven Generations Education Institute (ON): The institute will create pathways for Indigenous language teacher training by investing in their project Language Creates the Farm Team.

Mi’kmaq Wolastoqey Centre – University of New Brunswick (NB): The Culturally Grounded Indigenous Teachers program will redesign the Bachelor of Education program to include Indigenous language immersion with a land-based approach.

University College of the North (MB): The Teacher Training and Language Revitalization in Northern Manitoba: Building Capacity Together project aims to expand teachers’ training with semi-remote pathways, enhance language certifications, and facilitate transitions to BA and BEd programs.

Office of First Nations and Inuit Education (OFNIE) – McGill University, QC: Their Strong Foundations, Strong Partnerships, and Strong Futures: Advancing Indigenous Teacher Education by Investing in Instruction program is focusing on community-based teacher education and professional development in partnership with Indigenous education authorities.

IDEON TECHNOLOGIES, 2023 GGIA LAUREATE

Ideon is accelerating the transition to low-impact mining and transforming how companies identify and deliver the critical minerals to power the shift to clean energy. Their Subsurface Intelligence Platform helps target and characterize deposits with greater precision, supporting an environmentally responsible mineral supply needed to fuel the transition to clean energy.

“Three years ago, we were five people in a garage. Digital Supercluster, the nominating agency, was the first really large organization to take us as seriously as we were taking ourselves. [The recognition from the GGIA] has accelerated some of the initiatives and some of the engagement we were hoping to develop.”

Deepening the country's trust in and understanding of Canada's public institutions

Forum for Young Canadians

The 2024 edition of Forum's Summit 360 brought together more than 300 students 14 to 18 years old from communities across Canada to learn, engage, and build networks through a variety of interactive workshops, virtual tours, and peer-to-peer activities, and a chance to network with Parliamentarians. All with the goal of deepening their understanding of Canadian democratic institutions and growing their leadership skills.

Highlights of Summit 360 included addresses from Her Excellency the Right Honourable Mary Simon, Governor General of Canada; the Honourable Greg Fergus, Speaker of the House of Commons; and the Honourable Rosalie Abella, former Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada. Youth also participated in a learning simulation about the Canadian electoral process, and were taken on virtual tours of Parliament.

Looking ahead, Forum for Young Canadians will host its first provincial in-person learning opportunity in Vancouver in November 2024, and will host its first post-pandemic national in-person event in Ottawa in Spring 2025.

“I'm having a great experience so far at Summit 360! I've been especially enjoying hearing all of the participant questions for the different speakers and really engaging in furthering discussion on the different themes the speakers have been bringing up throughout the Summit.”

Victoria Gardner, Summit 360 Youth Host 2024

Forum for Young Canadians is building on its history of close to 50 years and equipping a next generation of youth with awareness about how Canada is governed at all levels, and the development of decision-making and leadership skills.

Michener Awards for Public Service Journalism

The RHF is honoured to serve as the delivery partner for the Michener Awards for Public Service Journalism, which recognize outstanding and unbiased journalism that results in positive change for the public good. This year, together with the Michener Awards Foundation, we announced the 6 finalists for the Michener Award, along with the recipients of the Michener-Deacon Fellowship for Investigative Journalism and the Michener-L. Richard O’Hagan Fellowship for Journalism Education. In addition, Chantal Hébert and Terry Mosher joined a small, prestigious group of winners of the Michener-Baxter Award for Exceptional Service to Canadian Journalism.

“In these divisive times of fake news and AI, gossip and propaganda, Canadians have never been more in need of credible, factual, verified information. The Micheners inspire and celebrate the best in Canadian journalism — journalism that strengthens our communities and makes them better. Our mission has never been more vital.”

Margo Goodhand, President of the Michener Awards Foundation

Michener Impact Story JOURNALISM SCHOOL DAY

In May 2024, we held a Michener J-School Day at First Nations University in Regina, Saskatchewan. Michener Award finalists and winners came together for a panel to discuss their work and what they had done to earn their Michener honours. This was followed by a series of breakout sessions on AI and data-driven stories; trolling for information on big institutions; reporting on difficult issues; and working in traumatized communities. The result was an engaged and inspired group of journalism students who now have a better understanding of the Michener program and the importance of public service journalism.

Empathy Engaged

In partnership with Volunteer Canada, the Empathy Engaged program is fostering youth engagement through volunteerism while creating a sense of community for Canada's youth. This work is laying the foundation for a national belonging and engagement strategy to support diverse avenues of volunteerism and community participation. One of the first of its kind, this program is working with youth from six communities across Canada to initiate a dialogue around the need for a more robust national commitment to youth volunteerism.

“We are very excited about this partnership with the Rideau Hall Foundation and are excited to listen to the energy and insights that youth share about the shifting landscapes of volunteering.”

Megan Conway, President and CEO of Volunteer Canada

Extending our Thanks

Thank you to each of our valued supporters who shares the RHF's vision: a better Canada for all. You help young Canadians access education, learn about civic responsibility, and how to innovate. You build pride in Canadian excellence and inspire trust in our institutions. In a fragmented world, you believe in collaboration and in the shared pursuit of what unites us.

We are grateful to you, we are inspired by you, and our work to realize Canadian ambition would not be possible without you.

Thank you!

“At this critical time of challenge and opportunity for our country, now more than ever we need people of all ages and stages to become active participants in their communities and in our democracy. This is a priority for the RHF and I am inspired to help further that work.”

Andrea Barrack, Senior Vice President, Corporate Citizenship & ESG, RBC

“I’m a great believer in giving back to my community and to the country. No gift is too small. I gave to the Rideau Hall Foundation’s endowment because there is power in numbers, and our support underwrites everything the foundation is doing for Canada. When we join together generously as Canadians, we can do great things.”

R.W. “Bob” Cunningham, CEO of Cunningham Business Interiors Ltd.

“At the Azrieli Foundation, we believe education is the greatest accelerator of success. The work they do with young, enterprising Canadians will have an impact far into the future; and I see my donation as an investment in this vision. Giving back is something I believe everyone should consider. And, as I always say, ‘It’s better to give it away with a warm hand rather than a cold hand!’ and ‘One who gives while he lives knows where it goes!’”

Donald K. Johnson, O.C., former Vice Chairman of BMO Nesbitt

“Innovative thinking in young people and helping to strengthen civic mindedness across the country are lofty goals when working alone. Joining forces with the RHF meant drawing on even more expertise and resources to amplify our impact for young people from coast to coast to coast.”

Ambitions for Our Second Decade

The RHF has aimed for “better” since 2012, partnering with generous Canadians to help catalyze programs that deliver real benefit across Canada.

Now in our second decade, our ambitions have grown. We see great potential for what Canada can become as together we face the complex challenges of our country and the world. From fostering the spirit of innovation among Canada’s talented youth to promoting excellence in education, we will continue to create opportunities for Canadians to contribute and to succeed.

We look forward to growing our work in partnership with fellow Canadians who share our ambitions for Canada’s future.

Special Thanks to the Barrett Family Foundation

Since 2020, the Barrett Family Foundation has been a transformational supporter of the RHF’s nation-building mandate through the Better Canada Fund, catalyzing a range of initiatives that support young people and help to build a stronger, more equitable and more resilient Canada.

Inspired by ingenuity, entrepreneurship and a belief in giving back, Bob Barrett, head of the Barrett Family Foundation, shares the RHF’s vision for Canada: a country where youth from all backgrounds are supported to pursue education, skills and meaningful employment; a country where Canadians are brought together through shared community, united by core values.

We are deeply grateful to the Barrett Family Foundation and look forward to supporting more Canadians through our renewed partnership.
